FAMILY EDUCATIONAL RIGHTS AND PRIVACY ACT

(FERPA)

"Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act" of 1974, is commonly known as FERPA. All Alamo Colleges adhere and comply with the provisions outlined in the law. The law is designed to:

- Protect educational records.
- Establish rights of students.
- Provide guidelines for correction of inaccurate and misleading data.

As an employee of the Alamo Colleges, all student work study employees will be held with complying with the provisions of the law.

Depending on the job task, a Work Study employee may come into a situation where FERPA law applies. Knowing what data is allowable or forbidden for release is vital; therefore, each Work Study employee is responsible for learning the FERPA regulations. Data that may be released is called directory information. Such items are considered as directory information: student's name, dates of attendance, major, classification, enrollment status (full-time or part-time), previous institution(s) attended, degree(s) awarded, academic honors/awards. Items that can never be identified as directory information are a student's social security number or institutional identification number, address, telephone number, date of birth, race/ethnicity, citizenship, nationality, gender, grades, grade point average or class schedule. Students may place a directory hold on any or all of this information by contacting the Student Services Department at their college. Each Work Study employee is responsible for learning the technical process at their work site to ensure compliance with the law.

Addition information on FERPA and Alamo College's policy and procedure can be found at: <https://www.alamo.edu/about-us/compliance/ferpa/>

Overview

First Steps

The District Student Financial Aid office will disseminate position allocations to campus Presidents and Vice Presidents at the beginning of each year. Campus Presidents will designate a person or persons to allocate eligible departments a number of work study positions. Each department who receives an allocation will be notified by the campus President designated person(s).

Once a department has received a work study allocation, it is their duty to submit a Task Description form to their campus Financial Aid Advisor. A designated department Work Study supervisor, which must be a full time permanent employee of the Alamo Colleges, must be listed on this form along with all contact information. This Work Study supervisor must supervise students at all times. If your department changes supervisors at any time throughout the year, a new Task Description form must be submitted to the Financial Aid Advisor.

Once these Department Task Descriptions have been submitted to the Financial Aid Advisor, the supervisors may begin to review the Work-Study Hold list \(WSHOL\) for their campus and access will be established to Web Time Entry (WTE) to approve student's timesheets for the appointed work-study supervisor only.

Department Responsibilities and Expectations

- Department supervisors may not allow their work study student to begin working before approval start date from the HR and Financial aid office. Any hours worked prior to and/or after the term end date will be paid by the department budget.
- Departments must supervise work-study students at all times.
- Department supervisors must ensure that work study employees are trained to perform their duties in accordance with district, state and federal guidelines rules, regulations and laws.
- Department supervisors should establish and set forth all expectations for their work study students. This is to include work attire, performance, call-out process ETC.
- Departments may not allow work-study students to work outside of business hours or during periods of non-enrollment.
- Department's Web Time Entry Primary or Alternate approver must verify and approve each work-study student's time sheet hours before the deadline. Failure to approve student's timesheet accurately and in a timely manner will result in a delay in payment to student. Departments also risk losing Work-Study privileges after 3 warnings.

EXPECTATIONS OF WORK-STUDY STUDENTS

Work-study students working on campus or with a District support office are expected to maintain a high level of professionalism. Your supervisor should establish and set forth all expectations for their work study students. This is to include work attire, performance, call-out process ETC... Below are general expectations regarding workplace etiquette and behaviors that most employers expect new hires to exhibit.

Acceptable behavior

As an employee of an on-campus department of support office, students, staff and visitors will view a work-study student as a professional who represents the department. Self-monitoring of behavior is critical. Behavior that is acceptable in other settings, such as those in a social setting are not always appropriate and may not be suitable in the workplace.

Appropriate Dress for Your Work Setting

Inquire about dress and grooming (including hairstyle) expectations when initially meeting with your supervisor to discuss your work schedule. Remain mindful that work-study students represent the department.

Attendance

The departments and the students served depend on a regular schedule, making regular attendance at work a priority. Punctuality, arriving at work and returning from scheduled breaks are critical for the operation of the department. Any deviation from the regularly scheduled hours must be discussed prior to the change of hours with the supervisor. Explaining an absence or reason for tardiness after the event is not acceptable professional behavior.

The supervisor recognizes that work-study students at times might need to deviate from their work schedule to get extra studying completed or to finish a class project. These requests must be discussed with the supervisor with sufficient notice, at least a week or several days beforehand.

If you are going to be absent due to illness or emergency, you must speak with your supervisor or designee at least a half hour before the start of the scheduled work time.

Confidentiality

Work-study students should avoid prying to discover information not needed to complete a work-related task. Respect student's and co-workers' privacy by not reading faxes, email, computer screens, or mail that is not shared. As a member of a department, refrain from discussing student's, individuals, cases or sensitive information outside of the department. Additionally, department documents, files, and other written materials should not be taken from the premises.

Work-study students should refrain from posting photographs of students or of themselves at work with other students or photographs of co-workers on social media.

Language

In the workplace, students need to be thoughtful of language as they interact with co-workers, visitors and students. Profanity is not appropriate regardless of the situation. Writing and speaking in complete sentences prevents miscommunication. Always address co-workers, visitors and students by their last name, unless invited to refer to them by their first name.

Personal Business

Take care of personal business, such as making or taking personal phone calls, texting messages, or sending emails before arriving at work or during your breaks, away from co-workers, guests or students.

Professional Relationships

As a Work-Study student, one of the student's objectives is to meet and get to know professionals who may later offer a job, refer the student to another place of employment or who may agree to serve to as a reference. Every effort should be made to impress the professionals with whom the student makes contact. Work to build and maintain a healthy working relationship with individuals at work.

Supervision

Work-study students are required to always have supervision and should always know how to reach out to their supervisor in the event guidance or information is needed. A work-study should not be left physically unattended or "in charge" of the department.

If you as a work study are ever left unsupervised or asked to par-take in full-time employee duties please contact the work study financial aid advisor at your home campus immediately.

Tardiness

Students are expected to arrive on time to their work-study assignment. If running late to work, call to notify the supervisor at least a half-hour before the scheduled start time, or as soon as possible.

Office Updates

Work study work and assignments for the Fall 2024 and Spring 2025 semesters will continue to operate via in-person, remote and hybrid work. Supervisors must ensure students have all access and technology equipment needed to complete their assignments. Supervisors will establish a method to ensure students are supervised and work is accounted for while students are working remotely.

Work Study Students who will be working in person or hybrid are not allowed to work in the following capacities:

- Working in the office by themselves unsupervised
- Used to clean and sanitize offices, tables, phones, walls etc other than the student's assigned work space.
- Used in a janitorial role
- Used to set up or take down event equipment

Work Schedule

Work Hours

A maximum of 38 hours per pay period, or 19 hours per week (NO exceptions), are allowed based on the financial need of the student as demonstrated by the FAFSA Submission Summary (FSS).

The work schedule is determined between the supervisor and the work-study student. The immediate supervisor is encouraged to initiate the work-schedule discussion on the first day of work asking the student about their class schedule, upcoming events and other related educational obligations that may arise during the semester.

Students are not permitted to work during established, assigned, or scheduled class times or events. If work is done during such periods, written justification from the student, supervisor and class professor will be required and must be submitted for approval by the Office of Student Financial Aid.

Beginning and Ending Dates

Work-Study students may begin work on the first day of classes of the semester, if eligibility is met and a Financial Aid Advisor has authorized a start date. The final day to work each semester is the last day of the academic semester. Only students with a secured enrollment for the subsequent semester may be considered for employment for the following semester.

Meal and Breaks

Work-study students are encouraged to take a fifteen (15) minute break and a thirty (30) minute unpaid lunch break for every four (4) hours worked. An hour unpaid lunch break is encouraged for students who work eight (8) hours or more in one day. Supervisors are to inform and clarify meal and break times that meet the needs of both the agency and the students. Students may not work more than ten (10) hours in a one-day shift.

Pay Rate

The hourly rate for all work-study jobs is $15.33 per hour. Starting September 1, 2024, the pay rate will increase to $16.29 per hour as approved by the Alamo Colleges Board.

Enrollment

All students must maintain enrollment in at least six (6) credit hours at their home campus during the Fall, Spring and Summer semesters. These enrollment hours must all be listed within the student's degree plan (CPOS).

Web Time Entry

ACES online timesheets are used to record the number of hours worked. A Web Time Entry (WTE) submission from the student is required for a paycheck to be generated for each pay period worked.

A work-study student should log their hours on a daily basis to avoid misreporting of actual hours worked. Work-study students should clock in and out using the time clock located on their Web Time Entry.

At the end of the pay period, the work study student must submit their WTE so that the Primary or Alternate department supervisor can approve the hours worked. Approvals must be submitted by the 15th and the end of the month. If a student has an issue with their timesheet please contact the Financial Aid Advisor.

WTE Proxy

Each appointed Primary and Alternate work-study supervisor is granted WTE Proxy access upon completion of the Department Task Description. Supervisors will “Act as Proxy” for the work-study Financial Aid Advisor per your department’s campus. Please notify your Financial Aid Advisor for any issues and changes with Proxy access.

A bystander is someone who sees a situation but may or may not know what to do, may think others will act or may be afraid to do something. Intervening in abusive or potentially violent behavior first requires an ability to identify the warning signs and then consider whether the situation demands action. Before getting involved, the priority is to evaluate safe and positive ways to act to prevent or intervene. *If the situation is already violent or is escalating quickly, do not directly intervene.
